ORGANIZE FOR BIG TASK

First Instructions Will Go Out From Washington Monday.—One Blank
Number to Be Replaced
At Once.

Washington, July 21.—With ten million men listed in the order of their ability to serve, the federal government began today its last task of preparation for organization of a selective draft system, the task of determining who among those chosen shall be exempt.

The drawing to determine who shall be liable for service ended early today, after it had been in progress without interruption, for more than sixteen hours, and while the officials in charge rested from the long day's work, took up the organization of official offices for forwarding to local election boards over the country. Most of this work is hoped to complete before the day is over, so that the local authorities can be given their instructions early next week.

Call Within Ten Days.

Within ten days, the men who are subject to the president's order for mobilization of a war quota of 650,000, may be appearing before local boards for examination. The decision as to exemption twice $67,000 are to be announced by the board. On the theory that two registrants must be examined for every soldier accepted, and the number each registration district must furnish has been carefully worked out.

The provost marshal's office was greatly pleased today over the outcome of the drawing. Officials do not like to admit it, but the success of the registration carried out six weeks ago, ten million men, they pointed out, had been assigned places on the nation's muster roll within the space of less than a day and apparently with only one minor error in the whole complicated process.

The single error came a little near the end of the drawing this morning, when it was found where there should have been a number in one of the 10,500 capsules by which the wartime fortunes of America's youths were determined. It did not materially interfere with the working out of the lottery, however, and all officials agreed that it could work no injustice to any registrant. It means only a temporary complication, they say, and in no way impairs the equality of the lottery.

To Search for Blank.

What serial number should have been in place of the blank had not been determined today, but it will be found shortly by a careful reckoning of the lists. Then it will be assigned to the only place open on the liability list. No. 10,500 at the very foot. Because of this, however, there only are 10,499 places now, with holders of the serial number 3,217 in last place.

It is said at the provost marshal's office that the error undoubtedly resulted from an oversight, and that no one could be blamed. A shift in the plans only a few hours before the drawing began threw on the general assignment of the task of providing quickly ten times as many numbers, and in 10 times as many capsules as had been counted upon.

Drawing of the blank came rather as a relief than a disappointment to the tired officials and correspondents, who had become wearied hours since of the monotonous drag of drawing and recording of numbers. All participating officials were in relay, but the strain of watching over all of them before the arrival of General Crowder, the provost marshal, replaced the blindfolded official at the drawing bowl and himself drew out the last number.

Wonderful Wire Service.—Scarcely had the historic event thus reached its close, than the news of the last drawing had been flashed over the country. The telegraphic teat of transmitting the 10,500 numbers rapidly as they were drawn was probably as officials today as among the most notable features of the whole process. The Associated Press virtually cleared its wires of other matters and gave right of way to draft numbers from the start of the drawing with the result that newspapers everywhere were able to give to their readers promptly the lists of those chosen in the various local districts.

No small part of the country-wide success of the lottery plan was placed by the Associated Press operators who for 10 hours with nothing before them but the eternal groups of figures, and with the thought in their minds that a mistake of a single figure would be matter of utmost concern to thousands of men and tens of thousands among their friends and relatives. For that reason no attempt at unusual speed could be made with the result that errors were kept at a minimum.

Some mistakes were unavoidable, however, in some respects the official toller reporters were at variance, and a comparison, and rectification was proceeding today.

The rule followed was that agreement in the record of 2 or 3 tellers in any case should be sufficient to show that the variation was a mistake of the third. All of the records of the drawing will be rectified before the official reports are forwarded to local boards.

Post Numbers.

With the close of the drawing, the great bulk of the business of making the new army ready for service will fall on to the state and local authorities. They now must post the numbers of the men first to be called from each district, make summon them for examination and latter on must take up the subject of exemptions. It will be their duty to turn over to the federal government, when the mobilization call comes in September, their quota of men fit and ready to go to war.

Wisconsin Is Ready.

Madison, July 21.—So far as Wisconsin is concerned, we are ready to meet the draft. Monday morning we are waiting for word from the federal government as to when to

Names of the First Five Hundred Men Drawn for the Janesville District

A corrected list of the serial numbers drawn in the draft for the national army held Friday at Washington was received this morning by the Gazette from the Associated Press. The corrected list, which is incomplete, since it takes the draft up to only the 2,241st drawing, gives authentically, however, the serial numbers in the order drawn, through the 500 drawn for the Janesville district, which includes Janesville, Evansville, Edgerton, Magnolia, Center, Portion, Fulton, Janesville, Milton and Lima. In other words, the names listed below are given in the order of drawing. If your serial number and name appear within the first 400, it is probable you will be called before the district board for examination. The date of the board will be determined by the board, and received the certified copies of the drawing from Washington and has received orders from the provost marshal general to proceed with the examinations.

In checking over the names published in Friday's Gazette with the corrected list received today, a number of errors were found. The Gazette accordingly is giving this list again, with the corrections and the additional names which it is able to supply of certainty which are within the first 500 drawn.

The first quota of the two Rock county districts will undoubtedly be made up out if the first 500. In the Janesville district the quota will probably be made up out of the first 400. Men whose serial numbers appear at positions further down in the list than the 400th or 500th positions will have to wait until the drawing is completed to report in, making up the first national army, which will amount to 687,000 men for the entire country.

Following are the numbers and the names of the men holding them, in the order drawn for the Janesville district, up to the 500th name:

General Holway today, after checking over his records of credit to be given to each county under the draft, is awaiting the appointment of the draft boards by the President. Three of these boards will be appointed for the eastern district, and two for the western district of Wisconsin.

No small part of the country-wide success of the lottery plan was placed by the Associated Press operators who for 10 hours with nothing before them but the eternal groups of figures, and with the thought in their minds that a mistake of a single figure would be matter of utmost concern to thousands of men and tens of thousands among their friends and relatives. BRING GRACE LUSK FOR MURDER TRIAL

Waukesha, Wis., July 21.—Miss Grace Lusk, the teacher of psychology who shot and killed Mrs. David Roberts as a result of jealousy grown from her acquaintance with Dr. Roberts was brought into court today to answer a charge of murder in the first degree. The hearing was adjourned until July 30.

Premier of Russia
SAID TO HAVE QUIT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., July 21.—Troops were being moved from "Camp Douglas" in Wisconsin to Camp Douglas today. Within the next three days practically all of the companies now in local armories of the state will be mustered. The times that the trains will leave to carry the troops has not been made known by General Holway, but prefers that everything be indefinite until all of the troops are in camp. After that more detailed news can be written about events.

The tents and all of the equipment is being rapidly put on Camp Douglas and the military reserves will be a busy place with many thousands of men. The office of General Holway is literally swamped with correspondence. It keeps many busy answering the mail. A separate department is taking charge of all of the draft information.

The activities of state which a few days ago centered around the legislature, has suddenly been shifted to the state's war department and the new reporters are as active in the new garrison news that can be printed.

A new force of clerks and stenographers to take care of the work has been added to the department. General Holway is giving general supervision to the work, aided by Col. John G. Saloman. All of the details of the correspondence that are not settled in the rules is referred here for decision making the state's war department a scene of activity.

Don't be backward in expressing your desire to help the work along just by getting up one of the club leaders or be on hand at the high school any afternoon at 2:00 o'clock next week.

PREMIER LLOYD GEORGE DE-CLARES MICHAELIS' SPEECH IS A CHALLENGE TO DEMOCRACY.

SAYS ENGLAND WILL NOT BE OUT OF
FIGHT UNTIL CAUSE OF LIBERTY IS FULLY WON.

London, July 21.—Premier Lloyd George said today that the speech in the Reichstag of Dr. Michaelis, the new German chancellor, meant that if Germany were victorious, there would be annexation all around, and that the military autocracy would be established more firmly than ever. The speech, he said, the premier asserted that though in charge of affairs in Germany had for the moment made the choice for war.

Lloyd George said the food supply for the 1917 to 1918 period had already been secured, and that a program of cultivation had been arranged to make the supply for the following year secure, even if losses increased.

We can't make peace with a Germany dominated by autocracy," declared Premier Lloyd George. "The war now becomes a struggle between two definite groups if national ideals. Significant in this respect is the announcement today of ascension of that brilliant Russian statesman, Kerensky, to the leadership of Russian democracy.

BRITISH IN TO FINISH.

"I don't wish Germany to harbor any delusion," said Lloyd George, "that Britain will put out of the fight until full liberty has been established."

Significant in this respect is the new announcement today of ascension of that brilliant Russian statesman, Kerensky, to the leadership of Russian democracy.

ONLY SHAMS.

"We have read Chancellor Michaelis' speech three times," said Lloyd George. "I see in it only sham independence for Belgium, sham democracy for Germany, sham peace for Europe."

Regarding the submarine menace I must disagree with Chancellor Michaelis. Gradually but surely we are increasing our protection and diminishing our losses."

BOOST SHIP PRODUCTION.

Speaking of the shipbuilding program, he said Great Britain's strength would not be used to the last ton unless Germany had for the moment made the choice for war.

The determination of the allies was that Belgium must be restored as a free and independent people.

BELGIUM.

The determination of the allies was that the heroic figure that Dr. Von Bethmann Hollweg did, Furthermore, he did not reveal himself as an equally impressive speaker.

VON TIRPITZ IN POLITICS.

London, July 21.—A dispatch from the Exchange Telegraph from Amsterdam says German political circles anticipate sensational entrance into political life of Admiral Von Tirpitz, father of the submarine campaign.

SHOW GREAT DESTRUCTION.

Washington, July 21.—Figures in the possession of the government based on the best information within reach of the allies, makes it appear that since the beginning of the German ruthless submarine warfare, the destruction of merchantmen hitherto available for entente commerce has been at least four times the amount of tonnage built.

The figures show losses to be averaging about 1,000,000 tons "dead weight monthly." This includes the weight of cargo whereas the weekly statements from London are based upon registered tonnage.

REICHSTAG ADJOURNS.

Copenhagen, July 21.—The Reichstag adjourned yesterday until September 26, says a dispatch from Berlin.

PENETRATE FRENCH TRENCHES.

Paris, July 21.—In the course of violent fighting last night on the Aisne front, east of Crepy-en-Valois, the Germans twice penetrated French trenches and were driven out by counter attacks, the war office announces.

Several other attacks at different parts of the front were repelled by the French, who inflicted heavy losses on the Germans.

PETROGRAD, July 21.—Dispatches say the most intense artillery battle is raging on the Smorgon-Kevno front. Several hundred German heavy guns are said to be engaged. The Germans sought to advance, but were driven back by Russian fire, a cracked Siberian corps bearing the brunt of the fighting. It is said the Russian guns are obtaining the mastery.

BADGERS IN SERVICE TOTAL OVER 22,000

VARIOUS REPORTS OF RECRUITING OFFICERS IN DIFFERENT BRANCHES DECLARED AS MISLEADING.

WOMEN DO THEIR PART

Wisconsin Housewives Start Saving Plan—Conservation of Fats is Perhaps Most Important.

By Ellis B. Usher.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 21.—It is not generally understood that the fragmentary reports of recruiting officers are misleading as to the grand total. It was surprised, for example, to learn something over a week ago that the total number of men enlisted in Wisconsin up to the 8th inst. in all branches, national guard, regular army, navy, marines, medical, ambulance and dental corps, officers training camps and so on, had specialized aggregated over 22,000 men. The guard comprises more than half the number, and the grand total has been growing fast during the past two weeks. There are over 1,000 guardians now on duty in the state. When it is considered that in 1862 it was nearly nine months before more than three regiments of recruits were sent to the service at the time, we need not criticize either the general government or our adjutant general. Things have been moving with remarkably good order and smoothness, and the filling of Wisconsin's quota of about 38,000 men will soon be completed, when the draft men are mustered.

Within six months of the recognition of a state of war with Germany Wisconsin will have her company in active training, perhaps most of them in grand, and the will have a second line formed to take care of the losses and provide trained men for future calls. When it is considered that this first quota is ten times the number of men sent to the front in the war with Spain, and nearly half as many individuals, it is evident into the civil war the magnitude of our activities and the size of the accomplishment may be partly understood. The state, for example, now has under arms by enlistment or conscription, one-fifth as many men as the entire force of the United States called out for the war with Spain. The man who doesn't think this country is doing things, doing large things and doing them fast, and has no comprehension of what is being done. When the war man rises up at the corner of a doorway and attacks the press with remarks of what the world is doing, he will be employed to assist in the work. In the neighborhood of fifty men will be on the payroll as soon as the plant is in operation, and this will be gradually increased as the concern develops.

Mr. Skidd is likely that Mr. Skidd will bring some of his skilled mechanics from Kenosha to direct the work of installation, a number of local men will probably be employed to assist in the work. In the neighborhood of fifty men will be on the payroll as soon as the plant is in operation, and this will be gradually increased as the concern develops.

Mr. Skidd is fortunate in having on hand a large supply of raw material, which will be moved here with the other equipment, so that work can be started in the local plant as soon as possible.

EQUIPMENT ARRIVES FOR NEW COMPANY

Carload of Machinery for Skidd Manufacturing Company Arrives for Installation.

With the arrival in Janesville this morning of the first carload of equipment for the Charles Skidd Manufacturing Company, which is moving its plant from Kenosha to Janesville, the long step in the establishment of the new industry in this city have been taken. The new concern which will occupy the south building formerly used by the Wisconsin Carriage Company, will manufacture dairy machinery of various types, specializing in the construction of a patented cooler for milk.

The building has been evacuated by the carriage company, and has been put into shape for the immediate installation of the Kenosha concern's equipment, and as soon as the machinery can be set up and the raw materials moved in, work will start. A representative of the company spent some time in Janesville early last week completing various arrangements, and other officers will be here Monday to conduct the work of installation. It is likely that the machinery and material will be moved from Kenosha in such a way that the plant will be in operation continuously. New equipment will be shipped directly to this city from the makers in a few days.

Mr. Skidd is likely that Mr. Skidd will bring some of his skilled mechanics from Kenosha to direct the work of installation, a number of local men will probably be employed to assist in the work. In the neighborhood of fifty men will be on the payroll as soon as the plant is in operation, and this will be gradually increased as the concern develops.

NEW RECRUITS PASS
FIRST INSPECTION

Allie Razook Treats Entire Unit To Refreshments and Cigarettes—Captain Better

Despite the fact that many of them have been in the company but a short time practically every member of Company M passed the inspection this morning with colors flying. A few of the men were set to recleaning their guns, but the greater part of the men showed that they have already learned the prime military law of cleanliness and order.

To show his appreciation of the company Allie Razook, proprietor of the "House of Fury" invited the entire unit in for refreshments yesterday. The men put on a little drill in the street before the place, and then marched in when the special program of songs of red, white and blue and cream were served to the men and a package of cigarettes given to each one. Bob Dailey sang several patriotic songs, and a number of the company members rendered vocal selections. A flashlight photograph of the men was taken in the store. This expression of real appreciation was most welcome to the men, and has endeared "Allie" to them forever.

The enlistment of one new man, Bernie Bickie of this city, increased the enrollment to one above war strength. Roy Berger was given his discharge, however, because of dependent relatives, and the muster now stands as before 150.

Captain Caldwell, who has been in the hospital for several days with a severe attack of pleurisy, is said to have recovered, but demands to be permitted to return to the armory. Discretion, however, dictates a bit slower convalescence for the captain, and he will probably not be back in his command until the first of next week.

No further orders have been received from the adjutant general's office, but it is very likely that the company will leave here for Camp Douglas Tuesday morning.

Four thousand fountain pens have been ordered from the Parker Pen Company of this city by the United States Navy for use in their supply offices. Although women are instructed not to stint in the use of sugar when making this jam, which many children prefer on war bread to white bread and butter, one must not lose sight of the fact that everyone should systematically save sugar. The best method of saving food experts also insist that if every person in the United States would save one ounce of sugar a day the saving in a year would amount to 1,200,000 tons, a saving of such tremendous importance in war times that it is the patriotic duty of all citizens to go to a diet and have their sweet tooth satisfied.

CHEESE PRICE STAYS AT PRESENT LEVELS

[IMPERIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Manitowoc, Wis., July 21.—There is small prospect of cheese price going down whether a federal investigation ensues or not.

This is the declaration of Manitowoc and Sheboygan County manufacturers and dealers, who are perfectly willing that an investigation should be conducted. There is no suppression of trade, no combine, and no effort to keep prices up, it is declared.

Of course, manufacturers say the higher the price the better. But at the same time they stand ready to prove conclusively that the price is governed solely by the supply and demand.

Prices this year are said to be generally 8 and 10 cents higher than last year at the same time, but this fact is not surprising it is claimed. The demand has been greater than the supply for some time, dealers maintain, while even greater demand is expected with the increase in supplies.

Dealers and manufacturers generally are ready to co-operate with the government or state authorities in the proper handling of the millions of pounds of cheese made and sold annually.

U. S. TO RUSH MEN TO FRONT IN FRANCE WHEN FIT FOR FRAY

ESPECIAL TO THIS GAZETTE,
Washington, D. C., July 21.—The official announcement of the administration's plans for sending expeditionary forces from the three American armies to France has been made by the Secretary of War Baker.

The present plans for the war department are so framed, Secretary Baker said, "as to provide for the training of all portions of the army
as soon as equipment can be furnished and to dispatch each portion of the army to France as soon as it is trained and equipped and tonnage becomes available."

Means Sending All Troops.

Only one construction could be placed on this—that the administration's plan to send across the entire nation an army of 500,000 drawn by conscription today; the full national guard of 453,000 as filled to war strength by today's draft, and the full regular army of 300,000, a combined force of 1,153,000 to reinforce the thousands now training back of the line in France.

Secretary Baker officially announced that the actual war plans in a letter to the New England senators who asked the war department why the national guard troops of the northern states were sent to training camps in the south.

National Guard First.

In his letter, Secretary Baker said in this: "to send the national guard units or such thereof as are already equipped and trained to join the American expeditionary force in France before the national army can be sent."

"Plans for the dispatch of our forces to France depend not only upon their training and equipment, but also upon the availability of sufficient tonnage for transportation. Had it been possible to assure before winter transportation to France for the national guard of all the states in the north it would have been recommended that the national guard be placed in cautions
on the part of the government.

Reason for Southern Camps.

The fact that transportation of the entire force could not be assured before winter led to a decision to have all the guard camps in the south, the secretary explained. He added:

"You correctly assume that it is hoped to have the national guard to France within a reasonable time, but it is entirely impracticable, with the limited tonnage available, to transport all the national guard of the northern states to France before cold weather,
even if the dispatch of the divisions of the regular army be postponed for that purpose."

"Divisions which have been selected for the national guard may be continued throughout the winter.
During the winter, if not before, it is hoped that sufficient tonnage will be available for the dispatch of most of the national guard to France, namely, those divisions properly equipped and trained for service in war," he said.

Secretary Baker then outlined the plan to send each portion of the army,
that is, the regulars, guard, and conscripted forces, to France as soon as it is trained and transportation is available, adding that no political considerations dictated the plan to train the troops to the south, but insisting that "every step taken for organization and training of all military forces has been prompted solely by the desire to further the prosecution of the war."

Senator Weeks told the senate that he did not consider the explanation adequate, particularly as the northern states have camps of national guard
in the north, and additional expanded to the government, and then, if necessary, the troops could be sent south later.

FOOTVILLE

Footville, July 20.—Mrs. Buck has been enjoying a visit with her daughter, Mrs. R. C. Evans, who came some weeks ago, but who left on the Thursday noon train for a visit with her brother, Arthur Buck and family of Dayton, before returning to her home in Northwest Iowa. Another daughter, Mrs. R. O. Allen, from Oklahoma, is also on a visit. Mrs. Allen will be better remembered as Mrs.
Buck, whose girlhood days were spent here. Mrs. Buck also has with her her grandson, J. D. Evans, who with his family motored here from Mason City, Iowa, for a visit, and who is seeing old friends. The Evans family having lived here for a number of years.

The hard rain coming up as it did on Tuesday evening, doubtless kept many at home who otherwise would have attended the social given by the Loyal Sons' class. However, quite a number were present and all enjoyed a pleasant evening.

Mrs. Emma Langdon came up from Rockford on Tuesday, returning to the city on Wednesday.

Mr. George Pennington returned to his home in Nellville, having spent some time at the home of her parents,
Mr. and Mrs. Chapman.

Mrs. Lizzie Silverthorn and daughter, Miss Daisy, left for town on Wednesday for a visit with another daughter,

Miss Jessie Mutchler of Des Moines, where Mr. Mutchler has held the pastorate of one church for a period of more than eight years.

Mr. Pepper, wife and daughter and son-in-law are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Pepper. Mr.

DARCY, WHEN DYING, PINED FOR AUSTRALIA

Before he died Les Darcy, the Australian pugilist, realized with all his heart every mistake he had made and longed for one more chance to do the proper thing in Australia.

The Sydney Argus, representing
one of the best sports circulation,
in its hand-picked column recently,
that Snowy Baker, the Australian promoter, had received a letter from Darcy asking that steps be taken to make it comfortable for him if he should return. Darcy wanted to go back and enlist in the Australian army.

This was after things had been going too badly for Darcy in this country. His refusal to meet the best middleweights of this nation, his continual demands for huge purses having held him down at a time when he might have been blazing a path to new glory, had stopped him short.
Feeling grieved over the unexpected
turn of the reception given him, Darcy determined to go home.

Cast out of the minds of fight-lovers in the United States, he then discovered that Australia had no place for the man who fled just two days before a vote was taken on conscription of all its men. News of his turning against Tim Sullivan had spread Australia wide. Sullivan was willing to help. There were all ready to help Mrs. Busch celebrate her birthday on Wednesday. Mr. Hazelton also came up from Beloit and was here between trains. These took their departure for their homes on the early Thursday morning train.

During the hard storm Tuesday afternoon, lightning struck a large ma-ttole in front of James Honeysett's house.

Mrs. McCaffery took her departure on the Friday morning train for her home in Brodhead, after a few days visit with her son and family here.

DELAVAL

Janesville, July 20.—Harold Dalton and wife are spending several days in Beloit, visiting and vacationing.
The world has been involved here of the death of Rev. Mr. Pauley at his home in an Illinois city. His wife, who survives him, was Miss Mary Stevens,
a former resident of this city.

Henry Goodger went to Whitewater
during the past week to see his sick brother, whom he found quite comfortable.

Mr. Kenney has started on his fifteen days' vacation from his duties as rural mail carrier. George Sturtevant will act as substitute as Frank Kenney is again on his own route.

Mrs. Fred Stanley of Iowa will arrive here this evening to visit the farmer's mother and grandmother.

The funeral of Ben Rockwell, who died at his home in East Delavan July 15, took place Tuesday in the East Delavan cemetery. Mr. Rockwell was a farmer in that vicinity and was 74 years of age. He leaves to his wife his loss a wife and daughter, Florence,
and son, Harry, who live at home.

Roy Wright and wife, with their children, relatives and friends at their home last Sunday. Seven auto loads of their relatives and friends came over from Durand, Wis. All carried picnic dinners and accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Wright went to Geneva
Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tent and Mrs.
Tent's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs.
S. S. Craig, will go to Burlington next Sunday, while a family reunion will be held at Augsburg Tent's.

Mrs. Ed. Conry has received the startling news that her son, Ray White, was injured by a stray bullet while at his work as civil engineer in Pekin, China. The shot was fired by one of the rioters.

Seven Delavan boys were over from Whitewater last night.

Mrs. McLean and daughter Eileen of Terrace street are spending a few days with Mrs. McLean's sister-in-law, Mrs. George Bashaw.

Mrs. Dalton, who has been ill at the home of her brother-in-law, Henry Dalton, went to Chicago to bid goodbye to her son, who was called away with his company, Mrs. Whelan Jones.

Albert Nelson and brother, accompanied by several friends, drove here from Sullivan last Sunday, and with the former's family held a picnic in the Assembly grounds at Delavan lake. Mrs. P. H. Sullivan was a Janesville caller Thursday.

Frank Finley now drives a new Studebaker automobile.

Rolf Johannesson is in Chicago visiting his parents.

Word has been received here of the illness of Mrs. Clarissa Clark in Sharon, where she has been making her home.

dence from Miss Effie Crane, located in a new footbridge leading to the residence of Mrs. Anna Shepard.

Charles Williams and force of men are doing an excellent job of grading
between the farm homes of Ed Wich and Mr. Hopkins.

Max Purmort has returned after an attack from nervous trouble at the home of his aunt, Mrs. C. Bennis.

CRUISE OF ST. LOUIS TIRES WITH ROUSH IN BATTING AVERAGE

Chicago, July 21.—Coming from behind, Walter Cruise of St. Louis had battled into a tie with Ed. Roush of Cincinnati for National league honors,
unofficial averages released today,
showing them hitting .331.

Roush, playing in 78 games—five less than his rival—had driven out 93 hits for 142 bases, while Cruise had 93 hits for a total of 131.

The St. Louis outfielder made twelve doubles, six triples and three home runs as against eight doubles,

six base hits and one circuit

drive for Roush.

The terrific hitting of six Cincinnati
players is keeping the club safely reposing in the first division, while the sys-

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

I followed happiness to make her mine,
Past towering oak and swinging vine.
She fled; I chased over shouting hill
and dale,
Over fields and meadows in the pur-
pling vale.
Pursuing rapidly o'er dashing stream
I scaled the dizzy cliffs where eagles
scream.

I traveled swiftly over land and sea,
But always happiness eluded me.

Exhausted, fainting, I pursued no more
But sank to rest upon a barren shore.

One came and asked for food and one for arms;

I placed the bread and gold in bony
palms.

One came for sympathy and one for rest,

I shared with every needy one my best;

When lo! sweet Happiness, with form
Divine,

Stood by me whispering softly, "I am thine!"

This little poem, from an unknown author, was handed in by a friend who suggested that it might furnish thought for a Saturday night story.
The sentiment expressed is so true to life that it is worth considering.

Just why the search for happiness is so often disappointing in results has long been a perplexing problem which,
in the minds of many people, is no nearer solution today than it was when the first home was established.

Humanity came into existence as the crowning act of Creative Genius.
History tells us that the first man,
"Adam," came into being a full-fledged man, and his companion, "Eve," stood by his side, a mature woman. Both of them missed the care-free period of childhood, and it is not surprising that the homes which they established were not a happy home, or that the first criminal was a product of the first family.

Just how much there may or may not be in heredity, is a debatable question, but the people who are strong believers in the doctrine find satisfaction in holding Adam and Eve and their descendants, responsible for the world's general cussedness. "The Old Adam" is a byword for original sin, while the gentler sex find consolation in the thought that Sister Eva discovered and introduced temptation.

Original sin and original temptation
have both kept pace with modern development, as the race has multiplied, and we have so improved on the simple code that disobedience has long since ceased to be considered a crime.

The notion prevails, to some extent,
that sin is the cause of all unhappiness, but that is as far from the truth as the statement that drink is the cause of all suffering. Some devout people, who profess to live without sin, have faces long enough, and sour enough, to stop a clock. The brand of happiness which they enjoy has nothing to recommend it, and so their influence is nil.

Another class of good people believe that happiness depends upon feeling good, and so they give free rein to their emotional nature until a religious frenzy possesses them, and they are at a loss to understand why all good people do not share the same beliefs.

It is said that honesty, while important, is only one of the graces of character, and the statement is true.
A man may be as honest as the day
is long, and so lazy that his wife supports the family at the wash tub. He may be as honest as the sun and as impractical as a school boy, and through it all he may be the happiest,
most care-free man in town.

The same principle applies to the zealot who depends upon feeling good for happiness. The mother who sacrifices the home for the church or society, indulges in selfish enjoyment, and has a false conception of what true happiness means.

Some people believe that the climax of happiness is contentment. They argue that the swine, which wallows in the mire and grunts satisfaction, is happy because contented. But contentment means satisfaction. It applies to the man with murder in his heart, who follows his enemy, and finally slays him, as much as it applies to the swine in the mire. Both are satisfied.

"Be good and you will be happy," is an old axiom, but when the fact is considered that the great majority of people spend their lives in trying to be good, it is difficult to understand why more of them are not happy.

The optimist is usually a happy
man. He lives in an atmosphere up above the mists, and is so hopeful that his feet touch only the high spots, and the obstructions of the rough highway do not bother him. He believes that the worries of life should be carried by the other fellow, and so they do not annoy him.

But the average mortal is not an optimist. It is as natural for the most of us to worry as it is to breathe,
and to many of us it becomes a habit,
and a source of great satisfaction.
Take the worry out of life and many housewives and good mothers would be lonesome, while many men would be surprised at the amount of good weather which the Creator furnishes.

Some men find contentment and satisfaction in remaining in the harness down to the edge of time. The same old desk continues to be their shrine, long after the eye has grown dim, and the same old shop absorbs them long after the hand has lost its cunning.
They have forgotten how to play and should not be disturbed.

A beautiful rainbow—so brilliant that the colors lighted up the dark background—appeared in the sky, the other day. At either end of the arch
the foliage and fields, not far away, sparkled in the soft colors, and an effort was made to start the caddies at the golf ground on a rainbow chase
for the pot of gold, of childhood fame,
but they were too wise to make the venture.

The chase for happiness, in which
so many of us are engaged, is equally elusive, and the experience of the man who traveled far and wide to find it, is an every day experience.
Our best-laid plans come to naught,
in the process of development, and disappointment often waits at every corner.

Happiness means so much more than personal pleasure, that we do not always grasp its significance. The man who goes on a spree and gets gloriously drunk thinks he is having a happy time, but how about the wife and children waiting for him at home?
There are many pleasures more refined but equally selfish, and selfishness is not a part of happiness.

The secret discovered by the traveler, as he rested on the barren shore,
has long been an open secret. "More blessed to give than receive" is as old as the Christian faith, and the principle is recognized and practiced today
as never before.

The happiness which warms the heart and keeps it warm, is free from selfishness. It inspires sacrifice, and is ready to make it whenever demanded, and the joy which comes in making others happy is the crowning joy
of happiness.

I followed happiness to make her mine,
Past towering oak and swinging vine.
She fled; I chased over shouting hill
and dale,
Over fields and meadows in the pur-
pling vale.
Pursuing rapidly o'er dashing stream
I scaled the dizzy cliffs where eagles
scream.

But always happiness eluded me.

But sank to rest upon a barren shore.

NEW DAIRY PLANT STARTS OPERATION WITHIN SHORT TIME

Kee and Chapell Company to Move in to Extensive Quarters As Soon As Machinery Is Installed.

The new Kee & Chapell Dairy company on Center avenue, after its completion, will be one of the largest wholesale milk distributing agencies in the state of Wisconsin.

Mr. Charles Handy, formerly part owner of the Bower City Dairy company, will assume the management of the new plant.

"We already have about three hundred patrons and I confidently believe that after moving into the new plant we can double this amount," claims Mr. March.

"Our cost for handling milk in our new plant will be approximately 100¢ per pound daily. At present we can only handle 50,000 pounds. Last month we paid out to farmers in this vicinity about $60,000 for their milk, inasmuch as our plant capacity will be more than doubled, I believe that we can expect to do a $1,000,000 business during the year."

About twenty-five or thirty men will be constantly employed by the new Kee & Chapell plant. It is the intention of the firm to commence a general bottling business in about eight months which will provide work for six or eight more men.

H. D. Conley, production manager for Kee & Chapell, company, made the statement that the Janesville plant is likely to become the most important country plant of the entire Kee & Chapell system.

The company operates plants at Roselle, Batavia, Maple Park, Byron, Elgin, North Aurora and Caledonia, Ill., and one at Byron, Wis. Over eight large distributing stations are located throughout the state.

The Kee & Chapell Dairy Company are one of the best known firms in the milk distributing business in the country. They have been in the business for nearly half a century and are widely known for fair and square treatment of the individual farmer. The firm will regard Milk Producers association prices.

Work on the new plant was started on April 30th and it is expected that the plant will be ready for occupation within two weeks.

"On account of slow transportation we were delayed over three weeks in erecting the building," declared Emil Rempert, superintendent of construction. "We are employing thirty-five men, and hurrying the job as much as we can, but it is absolutely impossible to get quick delivery of building supplies."

One of the features of the new plant will be the time saved the farmer in unloading his milk wagon. A ten-foot semi-circular driveway has been laid which will enable teams to drive directly up to the 120 foot loading platform without a moment's delay. While the farmer is unloading his cans, the supply men will be available to wash, rinse and dry cans and when the farmer drives away his cans will be dry and shining, saving him valuable time and labor after returning to the farm.

Sanitation has played the leading part in every detail of construction. Daylight will be depended upon, as much as possible, and windows, one of every four feet in size, being one of the features of construction. Every window will be screened.

Shower baths have been provided for the employees. A large dressing room equipped with steel lockers will insure absolute cleanliness. Cement floors have been laid throughout the entire building.

Yellow pine was used in the construction of the plant. Difficulty was encountered in securing timbers on account of the government having requisitioned all large sizes for construction of wooden ships. The lumber was all shipped from Chicago.

The building is of frame construction with a brick veneer. About 75,000 Chicago pressed brick were used for the walls and ninety thousand square feet of shingles. The entire supply of this type of brick in Milwaukee was exhausted before outside shipments were ordered. Wire laths and cement plaster were also used. The walls are of solid concrete, double reinforced. Electricity will be used throughout the entire plant.

Improved machinery of the latest model will be installed in the local plant. Much of the equipment has been imported from Sweden at a great expense because of the superiority of Swedish manufacture.

A hot water tank has already been installed with a capacity of 15,000 gallons. All milk will be perfectly pasteurized and clarified before being shipped to Chicago.

The strip of ground measuring 300 feet in front of the creamery building will be converted into a small park, featuring flower beds and trees, will beautify this strip of ground.

Janesville extends a hearty welcome to the firm of Kee and Chapell and wishes them prosperity and success in their new undertaking.

These Figures Give The Correct Order Of First 500 Drawn

Revised figures on the draft were received by the Gazette through the Associated Press today. Although every man registered on June 5, receives a position which will designate his liability for service in the national guard, as yet, no list of the drawings in the order of each of the 2,376 men in the first Rock county district, and of the 3,440 men in the second district of which Beloit is headquarters. The serial numbers given below, however, show the position of the first 500 drawn or more, in the first and second districts.

It is requested that the women of the nation to do, at this time, what the food pledge cards are to take this matter up as soon as other things were disposed of. The food pledge cards will be distributed at this time. These things are what the women of the nation to do, at this time, particularly asks the women of the nation to do, at this time, and the food pledge cards are to be sent out by the state committee for signatures. It is an enormous amount of work, which can only be done by dividing the city up into districts, with head offices to secure help and see that the work is done.

Also some of it may be done by securing the co-operation of the heads of societies and organizations and getting them to obtain the signatures.

Mrs. Bertha S. Hall is at the head of the local committee having this matter in charge.

WOMEN TO REGISTER; CANVASS NEXT WEEK BY COUNTY COUNCIL

That the women of the city are to be organized, and a complete registration to be made in them is an urgent fact. The house to house canvass will begin next Wednesday is the announcement of the women's committee of the Council of Defense, who have that matter in charge. Plans have been under way for some time to take this matter up as soon as other things were disposed of. The food pledge cards will be distributed at this time. For months now, her parents had been pleading with her to give Jack up, but it was no use.

Her fiance had fallen on his knees in sorrowful supplication. Many appeals were written, many agonized eyes when he told his dear Flavia, his truest friend, to give Jack up. To turn him away. In short, never to see him again. But it was all to no purpose.

She loved him, she said, dearly, dearly!

Her beauty was nearly wild. They threatened to send her away, but Flavia persisted, till where Jack went he would go. His home should be none, his bed would be hers, too.

Finally, they all gave it up. First, her parents, then her two brothers, then her four sisters, and last her fiance. They had all assembled one evening, to see what was best to be done when Jamison Flavio's young lover burst into the room.

"Be gone! Hurrah, he's gone!" she shouted. "The dog-eatcher got him this afternoon and he's sausage by this time!"

Flavia, coming quietly into the room and upon hearing Jamison's latest news, tilted gracefully into the arms of her fiance, Jack.

And everybody thanked the gods, and they all lived happily ever after.

The Phiffs have yet to be shut out. When it comes to the pinch, they sometimes win with it. Also they have the best record for consecutive victories this season, with ten in a row. The New York pitchers have no terror for the Phiffs. None of the bogenies has started his campaign. The Phiffs get forty-three hits in the five games. Gravett gets ten of them, one homer.

The pitching in the Delaware County League must be remarkable, good with a bit Beagle veterans like Charlie Doan has been averaging over .400. In seven games the sured thumb has been at bat twenty-two times and made only one hit. It will be recalled that even J. Franklin Baker did not find the Delaware County pitching so easy during his career in it.

Mabel Taliaferro.

Mabel Taliaferro, the star of many wonderful wonderplays, has enjoyed a unique, successful career on both the speaking stage and the screen. She was the first legitimate star on the American stage to go into motion pictures, and was only preceded in pictures by two other stage stars abroad, Miss Sarah Bernhardt and the Queen Coquelin. Her debut in the silent drama was as the star of the three-act feature, "Cinderella."

Miss Taliaferro began her stage career at the age of two and a half years. She appeared with Robert Hilliard and Annie Yeaman in "Blue Jeans" which was presented in every city of importance in this country. When she was fourteen years old she was William Collier's leading woman. Her next greatest success was in the charming role of Lovy Mary in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Then came the starring role in "The Bishop's Carriage," in which Miss Taliaferro was starred both in this country and afterward in Australia.

Miss Taliaferro made a hit in her remarkable performance as the little star in "Polly of the Circus."

She proved her versatility by her artistic work in George Bernard Shaw's "You Never Can Tell," and other roles equally as difficult. She also played the leading roles in W. S. Yeats' celebrated Irish plays, and was called to Ireland to repeat her performances in them. While in Ireland she was the guest of Lady Gregory at her castle in County Galway.

Miss Taliaferro was last seen on the speaking stage in the popular

play "The New Hattie."

She left that company to join the movie forces, and her role was that of her sister, Edith Taliaferro.

Another one of her Broadway conquests was in Booth Tarkington's play "Springtime." Since she has been on the screens she has been seen in "The Snowbird," "Her Great Price," "God's Hall Acre," "The Dawn of Love," "The Sunbeam," "The Way of the Hills," and "The Will O' the Wisp."

The British Tanks at The Battle of the Ancre

Played to thousands in Chicago and Milwaukee. A picture that the timid should not see.

Read the following excerpt from the Milwaukee Journal editorial column regarding this picture:

Cheer in the Trenches

Everyone who has seen the thrilling film of the tanks in the battle of the Ancre, and whoever does not see it misses a rare experience, must have felt his heart moved by many emotions. Here is the real thing—the men in the trenches, the men “going over the top” many to fall ere the enemy trench is taken, prisoners and wounded men, and men of duty, exhausted after hours of unremitting service. Here is the life our boys will be living. No man in whom there beats an American heart can help being moved.

Yet, running through all these pictures, is something that almost startles us, after our sleeping in the horrors of war. The men at the front are cheerful. They wear no look of those in whom is the fear of death—no strained tension marks their movement. They go forward almost gaily, with a twinkle in their eyes and a smile on their faces, having been relieved of light their cigarettes and press forward to get their cup of coffee or “skilly,” with far better appetite than we have for the fine viands of expensive tables.

Laughing, chatting, eating—they are normal, more cheerful than we are, and it starts us. Startles until we realize that men cannot be tipped all the time that they could not go on, week after week, month after month, with a sense of dread and impending destruction.

They are normal men, leading a normal life. Not the killing God forbid that this should ever become natural to them—but the outdoor, hard-working, hearty eating, sound sleeping men who are fit for a man's job, men living in the main as God meant men to live, not sitting in soft-cushioned ease while their bodies grow fat and sluggish. Strong-muscled, clear eyed with healthy appetites, they are men. Though they risk all, though many give all, one almost envies them.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am married woman, young in years and many years older than myself—because I loved him but to get away with this man's abuse?

A DISCONTENTED WIFE Since your husband makes home a miserable place for his children to live in, I think you are justified in getting a divorce. He will not risk punishment at all. Go and talk to him about your contemplated divorce. Consult an attorney and let him arrange matters for you.

Now he treats me like a slave and never allows me to have any peace or enjoy myself. Shall I get a divorce and marry the man I love, or should I put up with this man's abuse?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) When a boy says he loves you and thinks you're pretty, should you believe him or not? (2) The saying is that two people with dark complexion never get along or never agree. I believe it is so, because my friend and I can't get along and don't agree. Is this saying true?

(3) This boy is good looking. All the girls like him, but he goes with no one but me. The girls say I think I am smart, because he likes no one but me. What should I say to them? I don't think I am smart.

(4) It depends on the age and the character of the boy whether you should believe him or not. You will have to judge him for yourself.

(5) Don't say anything and don't care what they say.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy sixteen years old. While attending school last year I went to see a girl about two or three nights every week. Now I am working in the country about eight miles from the girl. There are lots of good looking girls around here, but none like her. I love her so much that if I ever need her protection he will care for me and my children, but he is too much of a gentleman to ever part with a man and a wife.

I have tried to be a faithful wife and mother and have done the best I know how to make my home happy. I now carry marks on my body that will take to my grave that were caused by my husband's striking me. When I leave the house he sneaks

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

HOW TO TURN A SOMERSAULT I can imagine how one is to turn those somersaults you recommend. A somersault, according to my dictionary, consists of a leap in the air in which the body turns completely over.

Is it possible that any one other than a professional acrobat can do such a stunt and live to tell the tale? (E. D.)

I have tried to turn a somersault, but I fear I shall never be able to turn a somersault and "come up smiling." On the contrary, I flop over in the most ungainly fashion, shaking the whole house as friend husband, if he happens to be in, fears the earthquake.

And then, I come up dizzy and scared. I am only 45, but I am forty pounds too heavy. Would that account for my ineptitude? (Mrs. F. W. C.)

Will you please tell me exactly how to turn a somersault? I am a business woman, and have had intestinal indigestion for about three years. I feel sure your somersaults will help me if I can master the trick.

(M. A. B.)

Answer—Ladies and gentlemen: We have with us this evening the eminent authority, Dr. Webster. Dr.

Webster agrees with E. D. that a somersault is a "living leap in the air," but disagrees with Dr. Webster and E. D. A somersault is a roll in the longitudinal body plane over the top, not a leap in the air. We must be responsible for broken necks, dislocations, falling plaster, or any other untoward effect of the treatment. Put two mattresses on the floor to learn to turn over some sympathetic soul.

A lady will avoid overdressing in traveling. Silks and velvets, laces and jewelry are completely out of place on a railway train.

MICROPHONE The strange young man who stopped you on the street to tell you were an extremely pretty girl, should have been put into jail. He was impudent to an insulting degree, and his behavior should be classed as criminal rather than rude.

You were quite right in not asking his name nor talking with him.

S. W. Young men should be a good deal of managers. If you young man thinks that you are not "crazy about him" he may become considerably more interested in you. No matter how much you care for him don't let him be too sure of you. Let him wonder and worry. It will be good for him. Be very independent, make him think that you are not easily won. Should He Marry Her?

"But be our experience in particular what it may, no man ever to the visitations of love paid to his heart and brain will treat all things now, when a single tone of one voice could make the heart beat, and the most trivial circumstance associated with one form was put in the amber of memory: when we became all eyes when one was present and all memory when one was gone."

I thought of that passage the other day. I stood near a boy and she was evidently in the courting stage.

She was saying complacently: "I always get a seat, some people mind a crowd but I don't at all. I just push in and get my seat. I use my elbows."

I looked at the boy to see how this affected him.

WON'T SHE USE HER ELBOWS ON HIM?

The same look of fatuous admiration as before was on his face. Evidently it did not occur to him to question whether this would be the kind of person he would like to live with, whether she might not use her elbows too much in married life to make it entirely comfortable for the other party. Her nose was rather nicely uplifted and her eyes though dangerous were bright. These were evidently

The Real Adventure

A NOVEL

By
Henry Kitchell Webster

(Copyright 1916, The Doubleday-Merrill Company)

It was just after Christmas that Ade Shannan took her away from Galbraith and put her to work exclusively on costumes. And the swift sequence of events within a month thereafter launched her in an independent business; the new partnership, with the details of which, through Jimmy Wallace, you are already sufficiently acquainted.

Her partner was Alice Perosini. She was the daughter of a rich Italian Jew, a beautiful—rivally a wonderful—person to look at, but a little unattractive, especially with the gorgeous clothes she wore, in the circle of women who "did things," of which Rose had become a part. Rose took her time about deciding that she liked her but ended by preferring her to all the rest. But the fact that they had become partners served, somehow, to divert a relation between them which might otherwise have developed into a first-class friendship. Not that they quarreled, or even disagreed with each other. In the close contacts of the day's work, but at the end of the day's work they tended to drift apart rather than stick together. More and more Rose turned to Galbraith for friendship that really understood; gripped deep.

There were long stretches of days, of course, when they saw nothing of each other, and Rose, as long as she had plenty to do, was never conscious of missing him. But the prospect of an empty Sunday morning, for instance, was always enormously brightened if he called up to say that it was empty for him, too, and shouldn't they go for a walk or a ferry-ride somewhere?

All told, she learned more about men, as such, from him than ever she had learned, consciously at least, from Rodney. She'd never been able to regard her husband as a specimen. He was Rodney, sui generis, and it had never occurred to her either to generalize from him to other men or to explain anything about him on the mere ground of his masculinity. She began doing that now a little, and the eyes also opened now and then.

In a good many ways Galbraith and his husband were a good deal alike. Both were rough, direct, a little remorseless, and there was in both of them, right alongside the best and finest and clearest things they had, an unaccountable vein of childishness. She'd never been willing to call it by that name in Rodney. But when she saw it in Galbraith too, she wondered. Was that just the man of it? Did a man, as long as he lived, need somebody in the role of mother? The thought all but suffocated her.

One Saturday morning, toward the end of May, Galbraith called up and wanted to know if she wouldn't come over to his Long Island farm the following morning and spend the day. She had visited the place two or three times, and had always enjoyed it immensely there. It wasn't much of a farm, but there was a delightful old Revolutionary farmhouse on it, with ceilings seven feet high, and casement windows, and the floors of all the rooms on different levels; and Galbraith, there, was always quite at his best. His sister and her husband, whom he had brought over from England when he bought the place, ran it for him. Rose accepted eagerly.

Galbraith met her with a dogcart and a fat pony, and when they had jogged their way to their destination, they spent what was left of the morning looking over the farm. Then there was a midday farm dinner, which Rose astonished herself by dealing with as it deserved, and by feeling sleepy at the conclusion of.

Coming into the veranda about four o'clock and finding her, Galbraith suggested that they go for a walk. Two hours later, having swung her legs over a stone wall which had a comfortably inviting top, she remained sitting there and let her gaze rest, unfocused, on the pleasant farm land below them.

After a glance at her he leaned back against the wall at her side and began filling his pipe. She dropped her hand on his nearer shoulder. After all these months of friendship it was the first approach to a caress that had passed between them. "You're a good friend," she said; and then the hand that had rested on him so lightly suddenly gripped hard. "And I guess I need one."

He went on filling his pipe. "Any thing special you need one for?" he asked.

She gave a ragged little laugh. "I guess not. Just somebody strong and steady to hold on to like this."

"Well," he said, very deliberately, "you want to realize this: You say I'm a friend, and I am, but if there is anything in this friendship which can be of use to you, you're entitled to everything there is in it. Because you made it."

"One person can't make a friendship," she said. "But you are content with it, aren't you? Like this?"

He snaked in silence for a minute; then: "Why, 'content' is hardly the word for it. When I think what it was I wanted and what you've given me instead—something I wouldn't trade for all the love in the world."

"I'd like to believe it was a better thing," she said, "but I'm afraid I can't."

"Neither could I when I was—how old are you?—twenty-four. Perhaps when you're fifty-one you can."

"I suppose so," she said absently. "Perhaps if it were a question of choosing between a love that hadn't any friendship in it and a friendship . . . But it can't be like that! Can it? Can't one have both? Can't a man—love a woman and be her friend and partner all at the same time?"

"I can't answer for every man," he said reflectively. "But I've a notion that nine out of a dozen, if you could get down to the actual bedrock facts about them, would own up that if they were in love with a woman—really, you know—they wouldn't want her for a partner, and wouldn't be able to see her as a friend. That's just a guess, of course. But there's one thing I know, and that is that I couldn't."

She gave a little shiver. "Oh, what a mess it is!" she said. "What a perfectly hopeless blunder it is!" She slid down from the wall. "Come, let's walk."

He fell in beside her, and they tramped sturdily along for a while standing."

An energetic young priest in charge of a parish in Cambria county, Pennsylvania, had succeeded in raising money enough to build and equip a new church, all except the bell. To get enough money for the bell he held a meeting of his parishioners, at which the members of his building committee made speeches. All except McCarty had spoken. One mentioned their fine church, another their comfortable pews; another their splendid altar; and another spoke of the steam heat they had in the church and of the coal in the cellar for the furnace. They were all sorry, they said, that they were without a bell and hoped the members would be able to make a further effort and secure the money for that purpose.

Then came McCarty's turn and he spoke as follows: "We have a fine church. Our pastor is comfortable and our altar is grand. 'Tis true we have no bell. But," said he, "we have steam heat in the church and plenty of coal in the cellar. The divile with the bell. Let's put a whistle on the church."

Someone noticed that Mr. O'Toole used both hands equally well. "When I was a boy," he explained, "my mother said to me: 'Moike, learn to cut your finger nails with your left hand, for some day ye might lose yer right hand.'
